Luthier

Part Time: 3 days per week, Term Time – 33 weeks per year
Salary: £15,940 per annum

The Royal Academy of Music is a stimulating and friendly environment with a diverse mix of students and staff from over 50 countries. Based in central London adjacent to Regent's Park, we have been training musicians to the highest professional standards since our foundation in 1822. Many of the world's leading musicians and performers studied with us and we are firmly focussed on developing tomorrow's musical leaders in a number of disciplines including classical, jazz, and musical theatre.

We are looking for a Luthier to join our busy Museum and Collections team to contribute to the repair, maintenance, conservation and occasional restoration of the Academy's fine stringed instrument collection. You will assess and repair instruments in preparation for student loans and liaise with the students and musicians to advise them with regard to the proper handling, care and maintenance of the instrument to guarantee its longevity.

You will have experience of handling and restoring fine stringed instruments and the ability to solve luthier-related problems in a professional, efficient, creative manner, combined with meticulous record keeping. You will also have enthusiasm and aptitude for working in a collaborative spirit and engaging with people of all backgrounds, in particular students and young people.
